REPORT.

THE Thirtieth Annual Report of the Controllers of the Public Schools of the First School District of Pennsylvania, for the School year ending June 30th, 1848, is presented in obedience to a law, which requires a yearly Statement of the amount of Expenditure, and of the number of children educated in the Public Schools. By reference to the last Report of the Board, it will be seen that the total number of Scholars at the termination of that School year, was 37,535—while the present statement exhibits an accession of 2,756 pupils—a very large comparative increase over the previous year, which presented but 510 more Scholars at its close than at its commencement. This increase has been greater with the male pupils than with the other sex.

The steady growth of the Public Schools in the respect and affection of our fellow citizens is proved not only by this accession to the ranks of Scholars, but also by the cheerful supply, on the part of the tax payers, of the large sums necessary for the support of the Schools, and by the quiet and order attending their administration. It is believed that differences very rarely occur between the Teachers or Directors on the one side, and the parents or guardians of the pupils on the other. Indeed, as nurseries of good morals and of obedience to wholesome discipline and law, our Public Schools may be justly regarded as among the most effectual preventives of turbulence and disorder, in a community, depending, as ours does, so much for its prosperity upon the virtue and good conduct of the people. The Controllers have seen evidence, the past year, of still increasing energy and interest on the part of the various School Directors throughout the District, and are satisfied that the faithfulness and vigor of the Teachers continue unabated. These are all directed towards the real improvement of the Schools, and serve to account for their advance in public estimation and favor.

The increase in the number of Schools has been 4, while an addition of 36 has been made to the corps of Teachers. Seven school houses have been erected, viz: 3 in Byberry, in the Fifth Section; on which has been expended this year, the sum of $2,098 83; 2 in Blockley, in the Seventh Section; the amount expended thereon has been $2,899 42; a Grammar School on Federal street, in the Ninth Section; at an expenditure of $5,975; another at Bridesburg, in the Eleventh Section, costing $3,825, including the lot; the Nixon street school, in the Fourth Section, has been altered at an expense of $5,240 89; and on the Chesnut Hill and Roxborough school houses, in the Sixth Section, there has been expended the sum of $1,101 08; making thus a total expenditure for new buildings, of $21,140 22. The School on Buttonwood street, in the Fourth Section, was unfortunately destroyed by fire, which communicated from an adjoining house, on the night of the 26th day of May last. The building was fully insured, but most of the School furniture was a loss.

The whole number of Schools is 236; designated as follows: High School, 1, Normal School, 1, Grammar Schools, 52, Secondary Schools, 25, Primary Schools, 118, Unclassified Schools, 39. The whole number of Teachers is 631, viz: male Teachers, 80, female Teachers 551. The whole number of Scholars is 40,291, viz: boys, 20,798; girls, 19,493.* The number of Controllers and Directors continues unchanged.

* The average attendance of scholars for the last quarter of the year, was 34,567 showing an average to each Teacher of 55.

During the year the Model School in Chester street has been converted into a Normal School, for the education of female Teachers. Much interest has been felt in this action of the Board; and it has been attended with very encouraging prospects of success. The first report of the Principal—a document worthy of attentive perusal—will be found in the appendix, and exhibits the present condition, design, and working of the Institution. The High School advances in its career of usefulness and in public favor. The report of its Principal, also appended hereto, will show the existing state of that Seminary.

An effort has been made by the Board still further to improve the Primary, Secondary and Grammar Schools of the District, by increasing and advancing the subjects of study in those Schools. The resolutions for this object are not intended to take effect until the beginning of the year 1849; and to render them really effective, the co-operation of the sectional Directors is necessary. It is hoped that the object of the Controllers, which is, to make more thorough the course of instruction in the class of schools named, will be ultimately attained.

The Legislature of the Commonwealth, at its late session, introduced some few alterations into the laws regulating the First School District. A quorum for the Directors of the First Section is fixed by Act of Assembly, at 20: and power is conferred on them to make by-laws, vacating the seats of members who do not give proper attention to the duties of their office. Vacancies, too, in that Board, are hereafter to be filled by the Select and Common Councils of the City, and not by the vote of the remaining members. The Directors of all the sections in the District are no longer required to admit into the Public Schools children who are under the age of six years, while, at their discretion, they may admit pupils between the ages of 14 and 16 years. The first part of this provision, it is thought, will have a beneficial tendency in many respects; children having heretofore been sent to the schools at too tender an age. The probable effect of it, should the exclusion be carried out, will be to exhibit in the next annual report a decrease in the number of scholars in our Primary Schools, or at least of children waiting for admission therein.

A thorough change has been effected in the system of keeping the accounts of the Board, which, it is expected, will conduce materially to the simplification and accurate understanding of its necessarily numerous and complicated transactions. New books were prepared, and all the expenditures of the Controllers are classed under appropriate heads. The books are kept on the principle of double entry, and show, by inspection, the expenses of the Board, and the objects for which the money is appropriated. The expenditures of each section are classified as follows: Salaries of Teachers—Rents; School Houses, Ground, and Water—Books and Stationery—Repairs and Additions—Fuel, Furnaces and Stoves—Superintendence, Cleaning, and other expenses—Furniture—and—New School Houses. It is made part of the duty of the Assistant Secretary to keep these books.

The total expenditure on account of the Public Schools for the school year beginning July 1, 1847, and ending June 30, 1848, was $285,331 60. Of this sum, $161,485 32 have been expended for Salaries,—$39,432 82 for the erection of new School houses, repairs, and School furniture,—$11,721 55 for fuel, furnaces and stoves,—$32,386 11 for books and stationery,—$7,493 38 for general expenses, including salaries of the officers of the Board, superintendence at office, and fitting up Controllers' rooms, printing, advertising, interest on loans, and the incidental expenses of the Board; the sum of $15,766 34 for rents—and $17,046 08 for cleaning school houses, and various incidental expenses sanctioned by the local Boards of Directors.

The report of the County Auditors upon the accounts of the Controllers, is attached to this report.

The entire expenditure for the school year, exclusive of the amount invested in real estate, being $252,614 27; and the number of pupils at the commencement of the year being 37,535, and at its close 40,291; one half of this difference of 2,756, being added to the former roll, and the aggregate 38,913, being supposed to represent the number taught during the whole year—it will be seen, that the cost for educating each pupil was $6 49. If, to the entire expenditure as above, we add the interest at five per cent. upon $750,343 62, the amount heretofore invested in real estate, the cost of educating each pupil per annum, is enhanced to the sum of $7 45.

The average charge upon the school fund of books and stationery for each scholar, is the sum of $0 83.

The County Board having refused in part the annual appropriation for the year 1848–9, required by this Board, it is presumed, that no new buildings will be erected during the coming year. It should not be overlooked however, on the part of those having the superintendence of our County appropriations, that with increase of population comes increase of public scholars; that most of our school houses are filled; and that gradual provision should be made, in an economical yet certain mode, for the supply of the increasing demands of our people for public instruction. Money, judiciously and rightly expended upon the education of our own youth, cannot fail, with the blessing of God, to return abundant benefits to our land.

By Order of the Board,

G. M. WHARTON, President.

Attested.—THOMAS B. FLORENCE,

Secretary.

APPENDIX NO. VI.

REPORT
OF THE COMMITTEE

ON

GRAMMAR, SECONDARY & PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

JUNE 13th, 1848.

To the Board of Controllers of the Public } Schools of the First School District of } the State of Pennsylvania.

The Committee on Grammar, Secondary and Primary Schools, respectfully

REPORT,

That the Committee, at the close of their labors, beg leave to offer to the Board a statement of their proceedings, and such suggestions as experience, and observation, induce the Committee to believe are calculated to improve the schools.

Nearly all the Unclassified and Grammar Schools, and many of the Primary Schools within the District, have been visited by the Committee, or some member thereof, during the present School year.

The Committee take great pleasure in expressing to the Board, the gratification they have felt in witnessing the general good order that has prevailed, and the improvement of the pupils.

The period has now arrived when, in the opinion of the Committee, some additional studies may advantageously be introduced into the schools.

The large amount of money now required for their support renders an exact and judicious economy in its expenditure an imperious duty; if this important object can be attained, and the schools at the same time elevated, considerable advantage must necessarily result from the measure. That the Teachers in nearly all the Primary Schools are well qualified to instruct the pupils in much higher studies, than those now taught in them, will readily be admitted, and it will not be denied that the cost of instruction in these schools is considerably less than in the Grammar Schools; most of the Primary Schools are now furnished with desks, and other necessary appliances.

The recent Act of Assembly, which does not require the admission of pupils under the age of six years, will materially facilitate the proposed alteration of the studies pursued in these schools. The Committee, therefore, recommend that in all the Primary Schools, the pupils shall read intelligibly, spell well, be familiar with the Geographical definitions, and with the Arithmetical Tables, and well grounded in Arithmetic, as far as compound Subtraction inclusive, and have some knowledge of Writing, before they are transferred. In the Secondary Schools, in addition to the above studies, the pupils should be instructed in compound Long Division, Mitchell's Primary Geography, and commit to memory the most important rules in Grammar.

In the Grammar Schools for boys, greater attention should be paid to the study of History; and Map drawing should be regularly taught in all the Grammar and Unclassified Schools. The free use of the Black board is strongly recommended. It is important that the Principal Teacher should frequently examine, and be thoroughly acquainted with the progress of the pupils in the lower divisions, and should take care that these divisions should not contain an undue proportion of the pupils. Algebra should also form a part of the regular course of instruction in all the Grammar Schools.

The Committee further recommend that the study of Geometry, Trigonometry, Mensuration and Surveying, may be allowed in the Grammar and Unclassified Schools of any Section, when sanctioned by the Directors of the Section, Provided, that these studies shall not materially interfere with the studies prescribed by this Board: and provided also, that the Text books, (to be first approved by this Board,) shall be furnished by the pupils.

The recent measures adopted by the Board to render the salaries of the Assistant Teachers more equal, cannot fail to be beneficial. The frequent change of teachers is disadvantageous to the pupils. The different rates paid heretofore in the several sections to teachers of the same grade created dissatisfaction, and the result was, that changes were matters of ordinary occurrence. These will now cease. But another and great benefit will be obtained. The rates of salaries being fairly proportioned, the qualifications of the different Assistants will be nearly, if not quite equal, and the same teachers will be well qualified to instruct all the pupils in the school in a particular branch of education.

In all Universities and Colleges this system has been adopted. Its utility is manifest. The teacher becomes acquainted with the pupil on his entrance into the school, and from full opportunity becomes well acquainted with his capacity and disposition, and therefore better enabled to adapt his instruction to each case. Every teacher has some peculiarity in imparting instruction, and the plan is therefore somewhat modified by each teacher, and on every transfer from one division to another some time is lost, until the teacher and pupil can become acquainted. If a teacher had a particular branch he would necessarily become more familiar with it, and therefore better qualified to impart instruction in it.

The new School House at Bridesburg, in the Eleventh Section, having been completed, an Unclassified School was opened in it under Mr. John Zerman, and a Primary School under Miss P. Anna Borton, on the 22nd day of May last. The number of pupils in the Unclassified School was 72, and in the Primary, 135. It is believed that the accommodations now furnished at this place will be ample for some time to come.

The alterations in the building recently purchased by the Board in Nixon street, in the Fourth Section, have been completed for three schools. The accommodations here afforded are spacious, convenient, airy and neat; and the schools will be opened in about two weeks from this time.

The school houses at the corner of Eleventh and Buttonwood streets, together with a considerable part of the furniture, in the Fourth Section, were destroyed by fire on the 23d ult. Under the sanction of the Board, the Primary Schools were at once transferred to the building recently rented by the Board, situate at the corner of Twelfth and Wistar streets, and the Grammar Schools were opened in two large and airy rooms in Washington, near Broad street, this day.

Great attention should be paid to the selection of suitable sites for new buildings. Reference should be had not only to the present state of the population, but also to its probable increase. It is a matter of regret that some of the school houses are in such situations that it is a difficult matter to draw a sufficient number of scholars to fill the rooms. The subject is now adverted to, that when new buildings are to be erected care may be taken that the situations selected may be the most eligible.

The accommodations provided for some of the Primary Schools are unsuitable. In the Third and Ninth Sections many of the Primary Schools have been established in rooms so small that they will not accommodate a number of pupils sufficiently large for a Principal and an Assistant Teacher, or in other words, for one hundred pupils: and while the number is too large for proper instruction under one teacher, the expense is greater than in most of the other sections. The attention of the Controllers from these sections has been invited to the subject of consolidating these schools, and your Committee entertain no doubt that the Directors of these sections will exert themselves to effect this change as soon as practicable. It is very desirable that the Controllers should, when the means are at their disposal, purchase proper sites, and erect buildings with every convenience for Primary Schools; but until then, arrangements might be made with individuals or corporations for the construction of such edifices.

In the new school house on the south side of Federal street, near Twelfth, a Grammar School under Mr. Eugene Smyth, and a Primary School under Miss Elizabeth C. Kerr, were opened on the fifth inst.

The Committee submit the accompanying resolutions to the consideration of the Controllers.

Resolved, That the study of Algebra shall be introduced into the Grammar and Unclassified Schools in January next: Provided, the text books to be used be furnished at the expense of the pupils.

Resolved, That the following studies, viz: Geometry, Trigonometry, Mensuration and Surveying, may be introduced at the discretion of the different sectional Boards, into any of the Grammar and Unclassified Schools of the First District: Provided, that the text books that may be necessary, and have been approved by this Board, be furnished by the pupils.

Resolved, That the additional studies recommended by the Committee on Grammar, Secondary and Primary Schools, be introduced into the Secondary and Primary Schools when the Directors of the sectional Boards shall deem it expedient.

All which is respectfully submitted,

JAMES J. BARCLAY,
PAUL K. HUBBS,
ROBERT ASH,
GEORGE W. VAUGHAN,

Committee.

The School may be considered as having now reached the limit in respect to numbers, beyond which it would not be desirable or practicable to go under existing arrangements. The whole number at the beginning of the last two terms was a little over five hundred. It is the same at the beginning of the present term. So large a number in one building, and under one course of discipline and instruction, imposes a serious responsibility upon those entrusted with the administration of the affairs of the institution. The experience of the last year has produced the conviction, that while we may safely continue the school at the present rate of five hundred pupils, we would run some risk in making any decided increase.

The whole number of admissions during the year was 229, of whom 113 were admitted at the February examination, and 116 at the July examination. The whole number who have graduated and left is 229, of whom 46 graduated in February, and 48 in July, the rest, 135, having left at various times throughout the year without having completed either of the courses of study prescribed.

The whole number admitted since the opening of the school in October, 1838, is 1,706, of whom 1,201 have graduated or left, and 505 are now in attendance. (See Appendix A.)

COURSES.

The numbers pursuing the different courses during the last two terms exhibit very little variation from the rates established for several years past. There were in the 19th term, 265 pupils in the Principal course, (studying French and Spanish,) 159 in the Classical course, (studying the Latin and Greek,) and 81 in the English course. In the 20th term, the numbers were, 276 Principal, 146 Classical, and 81 English. (Appendix B.)

ATTENDANCE.

One of the most gratifying circumstances in the history of the school, and perhaps the most decisive evidence of its healthy condition, is the rate of attendance. The average attendance during the last year has been a little more than 97 per cent., showing an average absentee list of rather less than 3 out of every hundred, at any one time belonging to the school. (See Appendix C.) This is indeed remarkable, especially when we consider the distances which our pupils come in attending school. More than two hundred come over two miles; quite a number come three, four, and five miles. The average distance which they come is more than a mile and a half.

STUDIES.

No material change has taken place in the course of study during the past year. The various subjects of study, the methods of instruction, whether by text book or lecture, and the text books used in the several departments, are all exhibited with minute detail in Appendix D. In addition to the regular course there described, there was in the school during the last session a volunteer class attending to the study of Phonography. Mr. Dyer, a Phonographic Reporter, offered to instruct gratuitously in the principles and art of Phonography, any of the pupils who would form themselves into a class for this purpose. A large class of about 250 was formed, who took lessons of him at the school, out of school hours, for two or three months. Of these a very considerable number made such proficiency as to be able to derive from it decided benefit in taking notes and making sketches of the lectures received at the school. Some few have learned to write phonographically with the rapidity of speech. I think it is desirable, if the experiment is continued, that it should be made one of the regular studies of the lowest division, H. The art being thus acquired by a pupil at his first admission, he might avail himself of its advantages in all his subsequent course in the school, and also by this daily practice in taking notes of lectures, become very proficient in the art itself. Mr. Kirkpatrick, the Assistant in my department, has been studying the subject for the purpose of qualifying himself to give instruction in it if needed, without incurring any additional expense.

EVENING LECTURES.

A course of evening lectures was maintained during a considerable part of the winter. These were numerous attended by Teachers, Directors, Controllers, and other friends and patrons of the school. The attendance upon these lectures was such that the room would not hold all that applied for admission. It was found necessary in consequence to repeat the lectures, part of the audience attending at the first, and part at the second delivery. Of the lectures, two were given by Professor Boye, two by Professor Rhoads, two by Professor McMurtrie, and six by myself.

SATURDAY CLASSES.

The exercises of the Saturday Classes are open to any Female Teacher of the Public Schools who may have the consent of her Directors, and to any pupil of the Girls' Grammar Schools who may be over twelve years of age, and who may have the consent of her Teacher and Visiting Director. The classes have been pretty well attended, and with manifest advantage to those concerned. The order of exercises is given in Appendix E.

QUARTERLY EXAMINATIONS.

Four quarterly examinations of the pupils have been held during the year, viz: one in the middle and one at the end of each session. These examinations, which are private, are conducted with great rigour. They extend to every thing which has been a subject of study during the quarter, and are made the chief test of promotion in the school. The following list exhibits the names of those who have been distinguished during the past year :

PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

The public examinations of the School, one in February, the other in July, were as usual numerous attended. During some parts of the examination indeed seats could not be provided for all who were present. During the days of the public examination the pupils were not all in attendance at the same time. They were divided into five companies of about a hundred each; the first company coming from 8 to 10, the second from 10 to 12, the third from 12 to 2, the fourth from 2 to 4, and the fifth from 4 to 6. In this way, there was a continued series of exercises for the space of ten hours. This arrangement has been adopted with a view to accommodate a greater number of citizens, some of whom find it convenient to attend one part of the day, and some another. Each examination lasted two days. The order of exercises for the summer examination is given in the Appendix F.

COMMENCEMENTS.

The closing exercises of the graduating class have been held hitherto at the school. The number of persons desirous of attending these exercises had become so large, that it was found necessary to hold them elsewhere. The commencement in February was in the principal saloon of the Musical Fund Hall; that in July, in the lower saloon of the Chinese Museum. Even these rooms, the largest in the City, were crowded, and many persons were obliged to retire, unable to obtain a seat. On both occasions, large numbers of the Alumni of the school were present. These young men are rapidly becoming an important and influential body of citizens; and it is cheering to observe the lively interest which they manifest on every suitable occasion, not only in the welfare of the High School, but in that of the whole Public School system.

On the occasion of the Commencement in February, the exercises were introduced by an Address from George Emlen, Jr., Esq., Chairman of the High School Committee. The other exercises were as follows :

Essays.

James S. Whitney, The Spirit of Life, a poem.

Charles J. Hill, The Influence of Great Men.

James A. Meigs, The Destination of Philosophy, a poem.

Alexander M. Wiggins, The Mysteries of Nature.

John F. A. Greene, Forward.

Honorary Essay.

John R. Whitney, of the Graduating Class.

Valedictory Address.

William J. M'Mullin, of the Graduating Class.

Alumni Address.

Daniel Strock, of the Class of July, 1844.

At the Commencement in July, the Order of Exercises was as follows :

Essays.

Robert A. Maxwell, Spirit of Liberty.

William H. Merrick, The Progress of the Mind.

William W. Loudenslager, The Decline of the American Indians.

Alexander J. McNeil, The March of Improvement.

Honorary Essay.

Cornelius N. Weygandt, of the Graduating Class.

Valedictory Address.

Turner Mullins, of the Graduating Class.

Alumni Address.

Frederick G. Heyer, of the Class of February, 1846.

A complete List of the two graduating Classes is given in Appendix G.

EXAMINATIONS FOR ADMISSIONS.

The examination for admission in February, resulted in the admission of 113 out of 177 who applied; that in July, in the admission of 116 out of 166. Of the class admitted in February, the average age was 14 years 1 month and 3 days, and the average time of their connection with the lower public schools 5 years 7 months and 19 days. Of the class admitted in July, the age was 14 years 3 months and 20 days—the time of connection 5 years and 6 days. All the other particulars in reference to these examinations, will be found in Appendix H. This appendix gives in a series of tabular forms, the numbers admitted and rejected from the several schools, the average scholarship of the candidates from each school, the name of each boy admitted, the school from which he came, his age, his parent's name, occupation and residence, and the time of his connection with the public schools.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.

In pursuance of the general instructions of the Board of Control, I continue to assist in the examination of candidates for teachers, whenever invited so to do, by any of the sectional Boards of Directors. In these examinations, I have been assisted by Professors Rhoads, Vogdes, Kendall, Becker, Bregy, and Kirkpatrick. My last report brought forward the record of these examinations to December 21, 1847. Since that time, I have held three, at which the whole number of candidates examined was 56. The whole number of examinations held by me since my appointment is 49, at which 964 candidates have been examined, of which 345 were males, and 618 females. (See Appendix I.)

The School in all its departments seems to be in a satisfactory condition. The Professors devote themselves with zeal and industry to the interests which have been committed to their care, and the pupils generally give encouraging evidence of profiting by the instructions received.

Respectfully submitted.

JOHN S. HART,
Principal.

FIRST SEMI-ANNUAL REPORT

PRINCIPAL OF THE NORMAL SCHOOL.

Philadelphia, August 29, 1848.

To John C. Smith, Wm. S. Perot, James Peters, Nathan Nathans, and Perry W. Levering, Esqrs., }
Committee on the Normal School.

GENTLEMEN:—In conformity with the plan adopted by the Controllers of Public Schools, for the regulation of the Normal School, I respectfully communicate to you the following report of its progress and condition for the term ending July 1st, 1848.

NUMBER OF PUPILS.

The number of pupils admitted at the organization of the School, February 1st, 1848, was one hundred and six. Of these, two withdrew immediately after its opening; one, in consequence of injury sustained by falling from a horse, and one on account of the ill health of her mother,—her services being indispensable at home. Two left during the term, because their pccuniary means were insufficient to enable them to continue at school; one of these engaged in employment at home, and the other obtained a situation in a store. Three were appointed to situations as teachers; two in the First Section, and one in the Second. Four withdrew on account of the lessons being too difficult, having failed entirely in recitations. Three removed from the city, and two withdrew in consequence of continued ill health.

At the close of the term, forty additional pupils were admitted; making the number now belonging, one hundred and thirty.

RECAPITULATION.

Admitted at the organization of the school,	-	-	106

Admitted at the close of the term,	-	-	40

When the circumstances under which the admissions to the school were made are considered, it will be seen that comparatively few have withdrawn. Many of the pupils enrolled themselves with indefinite, if not erroneous ideas of the purposes of the school, or their object in entering it; and in some cases, without considering the conditions of their admission, or properly estimating their ability or inclination to undergo the training necessary, to fit them to become honest and useful teachers.

As illustrative of the absence of definite purpose in seeking admission into the school, I would refer you to the following facts, communicated in my report on the organization of the school. Of the whole number of candidates presenting themselves for examination, nine withdrew before finishing it; and of the number who completed the examination, and were found qualified for admission, four changed their intention, and declined entering the school.

Much care has been taken to ascertain the real causes for withdrawal; and an exact record has been made of the reasons given by the pupils or their parents; yet I have no doubt, in some instances causes have been assigned, which although really operating, would have been waived, if the duties of the school had not exacted an amount of exertion and self-denial, incompatible with indolent habits and aversion to study. From personal knowledge, however, of the circumstances under which the withdrawal of the pupils generally was made, I am of opinion that most of them were influenced by causes beyond their control, and left the school with reluctance.

ATTENDANCE.

If regularity of attendance may be considered indicative of the interest felt by the pupils in the school, and of a desire to avail themselves of all the opportunities presented for improvement, this evidence is exhibited in a remarkable degree by the daily register. On several days not a single pupil of the whole school was absent; while the average absence of more than half the school, has been less than one day for each pupil.

The average attendance of the whole school during the term was ninety-one, the average number belonging, ninety-seven; making the actual attendance about ninety-four per cent. This amount of attendance in a school composed of ladies, many of them placed under circumstances making large demands upon them in the discharge of duties at home, some residing two or three miles distant, and very few in the immediate neighborhood of the school, is I think, unparalleled.

INSTRUCTION.

After organizing the school, and prescribing the course of study, I found that the idea prevailed to a great extent, that admission into the school implied a sufficient knowledge for teaching the primary branches; and considerable disappointment was manifested when a review of them, was indicated as a part of the course of instruction.

Instances were not wanting, of a reluctance to engage in a review of the elementary branches; or even to prosecute their study in reference to teaching them; although to qualify themselves as teachers in schools where these branches alone are taught, was the professed object in entering the Normal School.

The practice so prevalent, of estimating the pupils' intelligence by the names of the branches studied, or professed to have been studied, makes the task a difficult one under any circumstances, of bringing those trained in this superficial manner, down to the drudgery of careful investigation, even of those subjects which they profess to have learned. But here the difficulty was increased, by the circumstance of many of our pupils holding certificates of their knowledge of the primary branches.

The disposition manifested by some to neglect, or regard as unimportant, a knowledge of subjects in reference to teaching them, is characteristic of the system of instruction too generally pursued in the elementary schools. In these it will often be found that teachers are more disposed to attend to (I will not say teach) branches above the capacity of their pupils, than to aim to develop their powers by a proper course of mental discipline; and cases are by no means uncommon, where teachers, consulting their own interests, with the view to self-improvement, attempt teaching what they do not understand, that they, themselves, may learn.—Could any plan be devised for more effectually frustrating the objects of education?

By presenting the elementary branches analytically to the minds of the pupils, the reluctance to engage in a review of them, because they had been occupied in the study of higher ones, was effectually counteracted. Thus, the disposition to regard the study of orthography as unimportant, because they had been trying to learn philosophy, or to neglect the primary rules of arithmetic, because they had studied the higher, yielded; and much interest was exhibited in that which before had appeared dull and common-place. The professed arithmetician was now found earnestly engaged in solving the mysteries of addition; and the philosopher, in analyzing words;—manifesting a most commendable spirit of teachableness.

The minds of the pupils, no longer the mere recipients of abstract facts, were aroused to inquiry; and cause and effect became subjects of constant examination. That a thing was so, no longer satisfied the inquirer; nothing less than positive demonstration sufficed. The condition thus brought about, was not, however, entirely free from difficulty. The pupils were now not only willing, but anxious to study first principles;—but this was accompanied for a time, with diffidence and distrust of ability; and many appeared discouraged by that which they soon found to be rather imaginary, than real difficulty.

The effect of the thorough course of instruction pursued in the Normal School, has been to enable the pupils to judge more correctly of their own abilities; and although they now feel that they have much to learn, they neither overrate what they have acquired, nor place too low an estimate upon their actual attainments.

BRANCHES OF INSTRUCTION.

The language of the plan of the school defines the object of instruction to be “the thorough training of the pupils in the branches taught in the Public Schools, with reference to teaching them.” During the term just closed, the instruction has therefore to a great extent been confined to Orthography, Art of Reading, English Grammar, History of the United States, Geography, Arithmetic, and Penmanship, in reference to teaching these branches.

The style of recitation, mode of illustration, and perspicuity and precision of language, have been made prominent objects of instruction; and while care was taken to familiarize the pupils with the branches reviewed, a thorough acquaintance with the best means of rendering them intelligible, especially to dull minds, or weak capacities, was insisted on. The members of the classes were themselves made the subjects of practical illustration of the methods to be pursued, by requiring all who were found ignorant of the elements, to return to first principles; and master them, before being allowed to enter upon a study requiring a knowledge of these principles; nor were any permitted to pass to a higher subject of study, until their perfect acquaintance with the lower branches was demonstrated, by their exhibiting ability to communicate what they knew to the fellow members of their classes.

This constitutes the real difference between a Normal School and an ordinary school; in the former, besides a knowledge of the branches, the course of study should embrace such subjects and methods as are necessary for teachers to understand, in order to qualify them for the business of instructing others, in the knowledge which they themselves have acquired; while, if this course were pursued in the latter, positive injustice would result to those whose object it is, merely to become acquainted with the subjects of study.

The difference between acquiring a knowledge of a branch for the purpose of teaching it, and studying merely for personal improvement, must be apparent to the most superficial observer; and if in a school, a course of instruction is pursued adapted to qualifying teachers, then the school is no longer an ordinary one, but becomes a Normal School; and a two-fold duty is imposed upon the pupils; first, to acquire a knowledge of the branches, and then to learn to communicate that knowledge to others. The performance of the latter, evidently involving loss of time and waste of effort, to all except those who are preparing themselves for teachers.

As the pupils were admitted to the school with nearly equal attainments, all have pursued the same studies during the term; being divided into classes chiefly for convenience in instruction. The following are the branches of study which have been pursued in the several departments.

Theory and Practice of Teaching,
By the Principal.

Department of Music.

Mr. D. P. Alden, Teacher. Instruction in Vocal Music.

During the next term, Practice in Teaching and Lectures on School Government will be added, and a course of Instruction in Natural Philosophy, Chemistry and Physiology, will be commenced.

The time of daily attendance required of the pupils during the term, has been five hours, and the number of daily recitations, four.

EXAMINATIONS.

The regulations of the school requiring that the pupils should all be subjected to a rigid examination at the end of the first term, to test their improvement, and determine their fitness to become successful teachers, a written examination of the classes was made, on the several branches of study in which they had been engaged during the term. The results of the examination are preserved for reference; and will be found highly creditable to the industry and intelligence of the pupils generally; and, if compared with the examinations at the time of their admission, will present gratifying evidence of successful teaching, in the remarkable improvement exhibited.

I have before adverted to the difficulty arising from the pupils' inability properly to estimate their attainments; and the subsequent removal of that difficulty. That this is the case, is illustrated by the fact, that the unpleasant duty of advising the withdrawal of those not having proper qualifications to become successful teachers, has been to a great extent obviated by the voluntary withdrawal of nearly all who would have been the subjects of this action;—only a few remaining who will be likely to be embraced in this class.

Names of pupils qualified to enter upon the studies of the second year's course:—

- |                    |                     |

Similar written examinations will be made quarterly. The progress of the pupil can thus be determined by a comparison of the results of these examinations with each other, or with that made at the time of admission into the school. In this way the most satisfactory evidence of the attainments of candidates for situations as teachers, will be available to those upon whom their appointment may devolve. And if, in addition to these evidences of scholarship, there is afforded an opportunity of witnessing the pupil-teachers actually engaged in giving instruction, in the Schools for Practice, the test of fitness, or incompetency as teachers, must be complete.

DISCIPLINE.

The discipline of the school has required but little attention. The pupils, after a few weeks attendance, having obtained correct views of their relations as pupils of a school for qualifying teachers, were with much advantage left entirely to their own control. But few cases have occurred, where impropriety of conduct rendered any interference of the teacher necessary; and in these instances, merely calling the attention of the pupil to the subject, prevented a repetition of the offence; which was mostly the result of habit or inadvertency.

ADMISSION OF PUPILS.

An examination of candidates for admission as pupils, was commenced on Thursday, July 13th, and was conducted in the manner described in the report on the organization of the school. The following are the names of the candidates admitted, with the average scholarship of each.

Had I entertained a doubt before assuming the conduct of the Normal School, of the necessity of educating teachers with special reference to teaching, every day's experience of the last six months, would have contributed to remove that doubt. If in the ordinary pursuits of life, facility in expressing our ideas is deemed of such paramount importance, as to make language the leading subject of education, how essential must this accomplishment be, to those whose profession it is to communicate knowledge to others.

The conviction must be irresistible to every thinking mind, that the faculty to impart to others what we ourselves know, is not entirely dependent upon our familiarity with subjects, but requires cultivation by practice. That some succeed as teachers without having been specially educated for the business, presents no argument against the advantages which result from this training; and as these can best estimate the time wasted in gaining by experience that skill which is essential even to the most gifted, we find that the most successful teachers are the strongest advocates of Normal School training; while those less competent, unconscious of their own inability, cannot perceive how teachers can be taught.

Although I may regret, that the management of an institution, fraught as I conceive this to be, with so much importance to our school system, has not been in abler hands, I feel conscious that all has been done, that industry and devotion to its interests could accomplish.

The faithful and self-denying discharge of duty, and the earnest devotedness of the teachers to the interests of the school, are worthy of all commendation. To speak of them merely as a corps of talented and skilful teachers, would inadequately convey my opinion of their merits.—Let the results of their labors testify to their worth.

A. T. W. WRIGHT,

Principal.
